

CUSTARD FILLED DAYS AT TECHTV ...

Stan Lee: There's absolutely no truth to this vicious rumor!

Stan Lee: I created the hulk in the 1960's. That other guy wasn't born until the early 70's!

Stan Lee: Sure they're big, slightly green and they both go on rampages and use catchphrases with the word "smash" in them, but I assure you there's no connection!

Stan Lee: Say, you've given that Marty Sargent fella a show. Did he ever get help with his weird obsession with Super Heroes' privates? That was the most chilling conversation with a slightly deranged fanboy that I've ever had. Excelsior!

Ang Lee: No truth! No truth to the rumor! It is all idle speculation!

Ang Lee: One guy, he works around the computers. The other guy, he is built with computers. I think anyone can see the difference.

Ang Lee: I'm a big fan, a big fan of the station, but there's no connection!

Jennifer Connelly: I can see why people have the problem telling them apart.

Jennifer Connelly: But I know the Hulk, I've worked with the Hulk, and Mr. Reporter, that man is no Hulk.

Jennifer Connelly: Plus, I'd sleep with the real guy. He's hunky, like a monkey. The Hulk? He's a bunch of pixels! You can't get 36 hours of extended "Bedtime for Bonzo" out of a bunch of pixels!

Michaela: So there you have it folks. The people responsible for giving you the Summer blockbuster say there's no connection between ...

COOL STUFF
ous wheel lockups. Cool Stuff. TI

Michaela: ... movie monster the Hulk ...

Michaela: ... and our own Patrick Norton.

Rosen Joins CNBC
tics on the show 'Capitol Report' and comment on Michaela: Yah like that's not a lawsuit waiting to happen. We'll be right back.

Stay Tuned for More Crap Tomorrow!