

RELIVING THOSE DAYS AT TECHTV ...

October 2001 ...

Bill Gates: Tomorrow, tomorrow, I love you, tomorrow. You're only a daaaay ...
Paul Allen: You called, sir?

Bill Gates: Ah, Allen, this is a surprise! Come to wish me well as I'm about to embark on another conquest? Windows XP shall launch tomorrow and then ... we'll have 99.7 percent of the market! Mohahaha!

Paul Allen: Well, no, sir, I came to see you because I have a secret. A deep dark secret that I must get out. I've been meaning, gosh darnit.
Bill Gates: Enough of that humbug!
Paul Allen: Sorry sir, I've just been meaning to tell you this secret ...

Bill Gates: A secret? Pray-tell, we haven't had one of those around these parts for years! Let me guess!

Paul Allen: Sir, no, it would be better if I just came out and said it. I think it would just be better that way. We'll deal with the ramifications of the secret later.

Bill Gates: Is the secret the crush you have on that darling secretary down the hall?

Paul Allen: No.

Bill Gates: No? But you admire her dresses so much. It's almost as if you would have rather been born a girl ...

Paul Allen: Sir, that may have helped.

Bill Gates: What was that?

Paul Allen: If I ... never mind. I'll just tell you sir. My secret is, oh, my poor heart, how can it be in a room with you and not tell you? Tell you that, I love ...

Bill Gates: What's that sound? I think there's someone out in the courtyard. Why, this is interesting ...

::Knock:: ::Knock:: ::Knock::

Bill Gates: Hello? Hello! Why Allen, your secret was this nice surprise party! With dancers! Just like the kind I see when you take me to the "merry" clubs! This will be the best launch party ever!
Paul Allen: Oh dear god.

George W.: Are you sure this will win me the election in 2004, pardner?
Leo: Believe me, once they realize how much hardship and how many headaches you've saved them, computer users alone will elect you "President For Life!"
George W.: Yee-haw!

More Fun in the Past! Soon Enough!