

RETURNING TO THE AGE OF LEO ...

Voice Over: The book, the great book, it guides our lives. We live our lives by the book. When life gets rough, it is all the help we need ...

Morgan: Hi, I'm Morgan Webb ...
Megan: ... and I'm Megan Morrone ...
Morgan: ... and this is 'The Screen Savers!'

Morgan: Megan and I are covering for our lord and savior, Leo Laporte, who is off filming one of his 8 shows for this network. Megan is also blessed as she's carrying the --

Megan: Wait a second, this baby is my husband's, not Leo's! Eeew, eew, and I do mean EEEEEEEEEEW to that thought.

Morgan: But the good book says that all that Leo desires, Leo should have, For the great robots will come if he doesn't and all of humanity will be lost. Are you saying this is not true?
Megan: Do you really believe that?
Morgan: Yes, yes, I do.

Megan: You live your life by the book?
Morgan: Yes, as all good virgins do.
Megan: And the the book says that he should always get what he wants?
Morgan: Yes. Or the robots will come.
Megan: Then let's flash back 9 months. Somebody roll that tape.

Leo: Yes, that's right. I went looking for a co-host and not only did I find the best person possible for the job, I may have found the love of my life right here in on the set of the Screen Savers. I love it, just love it!
Megan: Get lost, Leo.

Leo: That's great, just great! I'll make reservations at -- what did you say?
Megan: I told you to get lost. Sorry, I'm newly married and I don't find you attractive at all.
Leo: What?
Megan: My marriage vows also say "no way." You know what those are, don't you?

Leo: You mean that stuff the preacher was babbling about before my ex-wife and I could get in the sack?
Megan: Something like that. Because of Leo: Damn. Damn and double damn. At least let me see your underpants again, I've just had my heart broken.

Megan: Not on your life, mister.

them, my answer is "no" and will always be "no."

Megan: Oh, what a glorious memory.
Morgan: But you didn't give into his desires! He didn't get what he wants! That means ... the robots. The robots will come out of the sky and humanity will be doomed!

Leo: Shazbot.

Megan: I say, "bring it."
Morgan: What?
Megan: Bring it on. Let's see the robots. If Leo defeated them once, surely he can defeat them again.
Morgan: But that's not how it works, that's now how it woooooorks!
